4. Description	Abstract	The Global Biodiversity Information Facility's Task Group has formulated three basic recommendations to the GBIF Governing Board in order to increase the rate of the digitization of natural history collections and improve the usage of this information resource: (i) GBIF must facilitate access to information about non-digitized collection resources by publicizing the research potential of collections through metadata and assessing the number of non-digitized specimens; (ii) GBIF must work with collections to continue to increase the efficiency of specimen data capture and to enhance data quality by means of technical measures, by means of ensuring attribution and professional credit and influencing institutional priorities, and by engaging with funding agencies; (iii) GBIF must continue to improve and promote the global infrastructure used to mobilize digitized collection data through technical measures, outreach activities and political measures.

American Studies

American Studies is a quarterly interdisciplinary journal sponsored by the Mid-America American Studies Association and the University of Kansas. With an editorial staff from a number of areas of study, the journal offers provocative perspectives on a variety of issues. Frequent special sections and special issues create a space for a broad discussion on a single topic. Articles on pedagogy inform the American Studies classroom. The book review section aims at keeping readers conversant with contemporary scholarship. American Studies first appeared in 1959, and has 1,000 current subscribers. In 2005 it merged with American Studies International, and welcomes submissions with an international perspective. This electronic edition provides free access to the back issues of the journal. The most recent three years are available via print subscription only.

NOTE:

The American Studies Journal is behind in its publication schedule. Our staff is working diligently to get caught up.

The next issue, Spring/Summer 2009 (vol. 50, no. 1/2) is expected out to subscribers by October 27, 2010

Other Tentative Deadlines:

Fall/Winter 2009 (vol. 50, no. 3/4): February 1, 2011

An official organ of the Milton Society of America and of the Milton Section of the Modern Language Association, Seventeenth-Century News covers all aspects of seventeenth-century culture, English, American, and European, with emphasis on literature and history. We provide reviews that keep both specialists and non-specialists abreast of new books on such writers as Donne, Milton, Corneille, Dryden, Wroth, Bacon, Browne, Behn, Grimmelshausen, and Cavendish; on recent historical work; on the scientific revolution; and on all other aspects of seventeenth-century life and thought. SCN is published electronically two times a year by the Department of English, Texas A&M University at <http://journals.tdl.org/scn>.

SCN no longer publishes notes or articles.

TITLE AND ABSTRACT

Title*	A multifaceted approach to promote a university repository:
Abstract*	Purpose – The purpose of this paper is to describe the history of KU ScholarWorks, the University of Kansas' institutional repository, and the various strategies used to promote and populate it. Design/methodology/approach – This paper describes how KU ScholarWorks came into being, and discusses the variety of activities employed to publicize the repository and encourage faculty to deposit their work. In addition, the paper discusses some of the concerns expressed by faculty members, and some of the obstacles encountered in getting them to use the repository. The paper concludes with some observations about KU's efforts, an assessment of the success of the program to date, and suggests some next steps the program may take. Findings – The paper found that KU ScholarWorks has relied on a "self-archiving" model, which requires regular communication with faculty and long-term community building. Repository content continues to
